UAE: AGT introduces IT security solutions

30 September 2005

Dubai - Advanced German Technology (AGT), the first IT security company that provides all around solutions for its client ambitious expansion plans for the region at this year's Gitex.

The software security provider offers full scale services that produce tailor-made concepts according to the individual need organisation, including choosing the right partners, managing and implement the project, training the staff and maintaining

"Our projects focus on providing our clients with a clear strategy in IT security, physical security and security solutions in ; managing director of AGT, Chbib told reporters at Gitex yesterday.

Chbib furthermore stressed on the growing importance of IT security in the Middle East, where security installations are y uncommon. Especially in the fields of e-business and e-government, both used largely by many gulf nations, adequate le and proper security measurements are essential. "Arab countries have so far allocated only five per cent of their overall I security. Together with our partners we are interested in changing that situation in this region," he said.

AGT, which profits from Germany's reputation as a leader in safety issues, delivers non US products in IT security, which welcomed by many governmental institutions within the Middle East. The company has teamed up with partners such as Technologies, F-secure, KOBIL systems and Genua among others.

Its range of products include firewalls, biometric authentication systems, high availability VPN's, site control devices to protect and ID-card systems, mentioning a few. Beside its main office in Dubai the company has regional branches in Manama, f Damascus.
